The members of the 540th field artillery at Rhode Island who sent out marching parties Monday located some more of the horses which broke loose Monday morning during the terrible thunder storm. There were found to be more horses in the barn than was first known. Some were found in the barn and some were found in the fields. One horse was found in the fields and was broken down. It had run into an iron stone spreader which is being used on the construction work of the new Post road. Several others were found by the men with broken hooves and ankles. Joseph S. Pickering, who was met by the animals there, being four together, had his new jeans badly smashed. One of the horses received a deep gash. The rest of the horses were located in or near Westerly late Monday. Officer Brecker of the Westerly police forces brought in several and the residents of the Watch Hill, Post road and Shore road districts assisted in helping to round up the animals. These horses are said to belong to the federal government.
